NATURE, CULTURE AND CAFÉS

With 18,000 inhabitants, Akureyri is by far the most populated town in Iceland outside of the capital area. The town is full of cafés, restaurants and activities but still remains small enough to offer the quiet of the countryside. Akureyri is a favorite among tourists, both foreign and Icelandic which arrive to the town by air, car and sea.

The town has picturesque nature in all directions and offers endless opportunities for entertainment and outdoor recreation, such as skiing, bathing in geothermal swimming pools, a nature bath, the colorful Northern Lights in the winter and Midnight Sun in the summer.

North Iceland is an, enchanting region, where you can find all of Iceland's attractive aspects. Within an hour driving radius from Akureyri, you can visit villages and islands, climb mountains, see hot springs, waterfalls and glacial rivers or explore volcanic craters, extraordinary landscape and other geological features.
